

Top genealogical library will move to Bay depot

BY MARY G. SEILEY

A genealogical library of international fame is being donated to the city of Bay St. Louis -- and is expected to be housed in the downtown depot.

Officials hope to put the L.W. Anderson Genealogical Library in the second story of the former CSX Depot.

The library, now housed at William Carey College in Gulfport, is valued at $1 million to $2 million, according to its owner, Ann Anderson.

Anderson said the library probably will be moved out of William Carey's accommodations and open in temporary facility here sometime between Thanksgiving and Christmas, and await relocation to the depot.

Details of the arrangement were worked out recently among Anderson, Mayor Eddie Favre, and Charles Gray, president of the Hancock County Historical Society.

Favre said Wednesday the acquisition is a major plus for the city, and is due in large part to efforts by Gray. The collection had been sought by a number of other entities, including the University of Alabama.

Favre said the city now is scouting around town for temporary accommodations for the library, in the likely event the depot won't be restored in time to house it by the first of the year.

The city has been trying to buy the old depot for months, in hopes of restoring it with a federal Department of Transportation grant. The purchase is tangled in a title question at this point, however, and city officials are racing to resolve the difficulties in time to qualify for the grant.

Federal, state and local officials involved in the purchase hope to iron out the problems in a meeting next week. Favre said he remains confident the depot deal will materialize, despite numerous frustrating delays.

As it stands, the city needs federal approval of an arrangement in which CSX would retain ownership of a small portion of the depot closest to the railroad tracks. The railroad is offering the city a "perpetual easement" on that part of the building, and outright title to the rest of the property.

Federal officials have to agree to that arrangement before releasing the restoration grant funds.

Another question concerns condemnation. City officials say the

Asbestos

Is it under the tiles at HNCE?

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

The question of whether or not asbestos is under floor tiles at Hancock Elementary and what the school board is going to do about it was the main topic of discussion at the Hancock County School Board meeting Monday morning.

Assistant Superintendent Eddie Danzey told the board that an architect specializing in asbestos needs to be hired before the district can remove and replace existing tile in the hallway of the school.

"Samples have been taken and sent off for analysis. The results are not back yet so we don't really know what we are dealing with," Danzey said.

Danzey told the board that presently there were at least two layers of tile on the floor and if they had to, they could put another layer of tile on the floor if they were dealing with asbestos.

"You can encapsulate it (asbestos) with another layer of tile or carpet. All of the schools have been tested for asbestos, but that is underneath the tile. I hate to say it's asbestos, we really don't know," Danzey said.

The board approved to allow Danzey to speak with architects to find one qualified for this type of project.

He said that it is possible that the results of the tests on the tile will be in before the next board meeting which will be held on July 20.

The board also accepted a recommendation from Rhea Scafidi, to join the Mississippi Department of Education Purchasing Program for projected operation cost of $4,533 annual charge and a start up cost of $3,069, which is a one time fee, for a total of $7,602.

Scafidi said that joining this program and receiving the foods at a lesser price may help the food service program in the district not raise the school lunch price for the students.

In other matters, the board also:

— Approved to advertise for wall coverings for Hancock

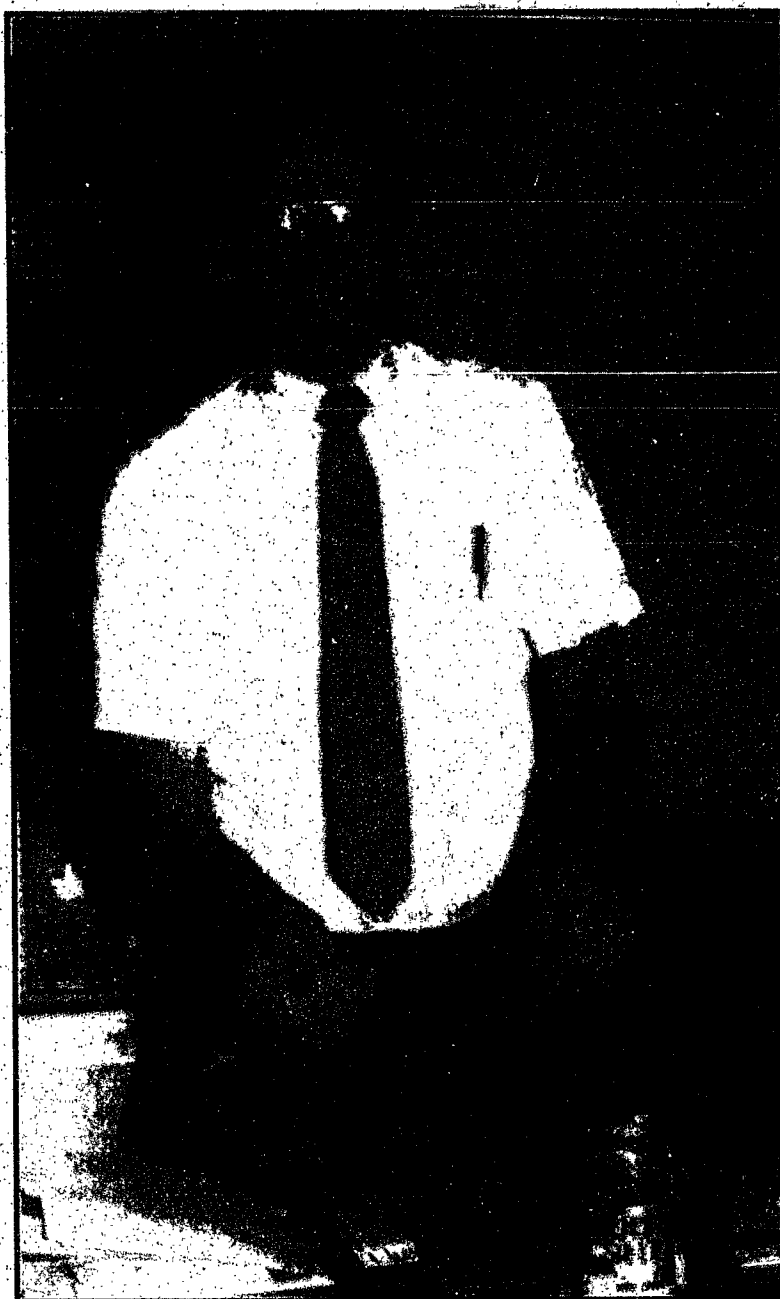

North Central Elementary and Gulfview Elementary hallways to complete renovation work at these sites.

— Approved to advertise for bids for tile or carpet for Hancock North Central Elementary hallway to complete renovation work at this site.

— Approved to employ Freeman Paint and Drywall as a contracted service for painting at Hancock Elementary for a cost not to exceed $5,500.

— Accepted the low quote received for the purchase and installation of a 5-ton air conditioning system with duct work from All Seasons in the amount of $2,506.07.

— Adjourned until July 20.

Hoda exhibits syringes and beer found at scene

Coast man nabbed in theft of drugs

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

He entered the medical clinic with one thing on his mind and apparently that was getting drugs.

James Travis Gibby, 20, of Gulfport, was charged with burglary of a business after he was caught allegedly stealing from Waveland Medical Center two hypodermic needles containing valium, a vial of valium and several empty needles and syringes, Investigator Nathan Hoda with the Hancock County Sheriff's Department said.

"Waveland Police Officer Laura Lachin apprehended the subject in the rear of the business. He apparently broke a window on the west side of the building, entered the business and damaged approximately $1,500 worth of X-ray film," Hoda said.

Gibby was still inside the business and was using the telephone when nurses arrived for work, Hoda added.

He is presently in jail for the July 7 burglary with bond set at $5,000.

Officer Reggie Smith, with the Waveland Police Department, and Bay Police officers Travis Foreman and Jeff Hair assisted in the case.

Deputy Bruce Procopus transported the prisoner to the Hancock County Justice Facility.

Beningo's has a history behind it

BY CHARLEE MARSHALL

Benigno's Grocery and Deli has been in business for just three weeks, but there's a lot of history behind those front doors.

The original building housing the new family-owned market and restaurant was built back in the 1920s. It was one long two storied structure before fire gutted one end of it around the time of Hurricane Camille.

Owners Roy and Leverna Dedeaux and their sons Joey Dedeaux, 11, and Chris Russ, 17, assisted by Patsy Oliver, are getting ready for the brisk business they hope will come. Roy and Leverna have stocked basic grocery and produce items and have set out tables, chairs and bar stools so customers can enjoy po-boys, boiled crabs and crawfish and other specialties.

Leverna's father, Sam Benigno, has retired from running the tavern two-doors down from the new grocery/deli. He knows a lot of the background of the area. He said his brother Norman opened up the package store next door "back when liquor went legal."

"It was the first in Hancock County," Sam added.

Norman and Sam operated the tavern since 1935 in the area which served over 50 years as the heart of Bay St. Louis' business district.

When Roy made plans to open his place, he "started digging into it" (history). He said he "tried to restore it back" and "guttered the place."

He "took it down to the original brick," which provides a perfect foil for the framed works by local artists, shelves of old apothecary bottles and other memorabilia decorating the walls.

Roy said the restoration took him about a year and required that the layers of plastic covering the walls be chipped away, chunk by chunk, to expose the

Telephone Pioneers return to Buccaneer State Park for rally

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

The 1994 International Family Telephone Pioneers of America Rally will be held July 16 through 22 at Buccaneer State Park, Waveland.

Some 310 camper units are expected to begin arriving at Buccaneer within a few days for the second rally to be held in Hancock County by the International Telephone Pioneers.

Jay Lagasse, vice-president of the Gulf Coast Chapter of the Telephone Pioneers said, "The reason for the second international rally to be held at Buccaneer is because of the Hancock County hospitality the members received in 1990."

Lagasse, local spokesman, has been instrumental in coor-inating the visit to Buccaneer State Park.

"The International Pioneers are composed of retired and active telephone employees from across America and Canada," Lagasse added.

Some Telephone Pioneers from Canada and Northern United States will be utilizing local motels during the rally because of the distance which they would have had to travel.

It was estimated that some $400,000 was left in Hancock County's economy from the 1990 rally.

Other regional rallies have also been held at Buccaneer. Buccaneer State Park, in pre-

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

Is our land free?

Kouichi Takemoto stepped out of his '87 Toyota and was immediately confronted by a man who demanded his money. Yelling to another man for help, he was dismayed to discover this was an accomplice who promptly shot him below the left shoulder.

"When I said 'help,' the gunman fired at me," he reflected. "I think if I didn't say anything, probably the gunman didn't shoot me. I didn't make any karate stance. My knees were shaking. I was afraid to see the gun."

A karate student, Kouichi was not unaware of recent history. Not even a month before, two 19-year-old Japanese students had been gunned down in a carjacking in Los Angeles.

Two years before that, a Japanese high school student, looking for a Halloween party, approached the wrong house in Baton Rouge, La. A bit quick on the trigger, the resident male mistook him for a prowler, shot and killed him.

Amazingly, the young Japanese student of travel at National College in Denver was undaunted by his harrowing experience: "I like America. I love America . . . (but) if you want to come to the United States, you must always be careful."

Observing how very dangerous this country appears for the average person to work or travel, both Kouichi and his father urge Americans to enact stricter gun-control laws.

While the NRA and many right-wingers continue to raise a cloud of dust about the Second Amendment and almost unrestricted gun rights, the root problem is usually overlooked by proponents of stricter gun control.

Culture is the main problem. A culture of violence, once unavoidable during the U.S. expansion to the West, has not only been retained to this day, but is being constantly glorified through TV, movies and sensational writings.

Is ours truly the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave? It appears to be rapidly becoming more and more the home of the brave because it is less and less the land of the free. Increasingly, only brave souls dare live here.

Toronto's explosion of violence after their beloved Maple Leafs' dismemberment by the New York Rangers' hockey team was alarming. However, it was a seldom occurrence for Canada.

International soccer has long been a focus of violence in otherwise peaceful countries such as England. Oddly, sports has but rarely been a scene of violence in the U.S. until now when baseball and basketball sometimes rival hockey's hits.

Domestic violence, so painfully exposed in recent news at the celebrity level, is in part cause, in part result of the lethal culture of violence continuously portrayed on TV.

Is our land free? Not so long as we continue to mollycoddle spouse abusers and child abusers until the abuse explodes into violence. To be sure, the abused are not free.

A recent national news bulletin asserts that the U.S. is no longer the haven for the world's tired, poor, the huddled masses yearning to breathe free.

Haiti's rejected political fugitives are the foremost example of this twist of freedom.

Is our land free? As we prepare once more to celebrate our birthday as the greatest democracy the world has known, we have to wonder to what extent we have lost our nation's soul.

We will never be free so long as we preach "One nation under God," yet cater to violence and glorify the ungodly.

Another might be to enjoy a person's friendship without trying to make a love relationship out of it. If it grows into love, then you already have established a good foundation for a relationship.

Sometimes even when you have done all the right things, relationships still go sour. When that happens, bury it, grieve for a while and then begin moving again in a positive direction.

Even when you don't feel like being positive, smile and do it anyway. After a while you may be surprised to notice that you actually feel like it.

have made excuses to herself that you weren't going with him anymore, so it wouldn't make a difference if she moved in. She must not have given any thought or concern to how this would make you feel.

You need to let go of your bad feelings and disappointment. It was bad enough to feel the pain when it happened. Don't keep punishing yourself by dwelling on being wronged. Leave it in the past and move on. The person you're hurting is you.

Is there anything to be learned from this? Maybe one significant thing would be that you always need to work on having honest, open communication in a relationship.

"I had a boyfriend who asked me to be true to him, and I was as true as I know how to be. Soon afterward his grandmother died, and he said he needed some time to be by himself. I agreed and left him alone."

"Soon my first cousin (a girl) started asking me a lot of questions about my boyfriend—was he nice; did he buy me a lot of jewelry. I said yes. About two weeks later, she and my boyfriend started going together. "I was true to him like he asked, so why did he do this? It has been two years since this happened, and I still love him and I still hurt. What should I do?"

It always is painful when someone you care about lets you down. In this case, two people you had faith in let you down.

As to why they let you down, probably no one except each of them could answer that. Sometimes people let their bad sides overshadow their good. They let their selfish desires take over their actions.

Your boyfriend may have wanted out of the relationship but was afraid to come right out and tell you. Instead he gave you an excuse and started seeing your cousin.

Your cousin must have liked what you told her about the guy and went after him. She may

Officials still in jam over juvenile jail

BY MARY G. SEILEY

It may be another couple of months, if ever, before Hancock County can put juveniles in a newly prepared section of the county jail.

A $15,000 construction project to build a separate area for underage detainees is complete, except for very minor details, Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said Monday.

But now that it's built, there are some major stumbling blocks to be moved before the court system can turn to the jail for temporary housing of youths.

Problems include an at-capacity population in the jail, and the complexities of accommodating male and female adults, youths, a mixture of county and state prisoners, and federal Immigration and Naturalization inmates.

The county was under a March 1 deadline to separate youths from adults at the facility. When the deadline arrived, construction of the youth area hadn't begun. When construction did begin, it bogged down due to a shortage of specialized materials needed to complete it.

The sheriff said Monday it's a matter of no more than a week before the minor finishing touches are put in place, and county officials can declare the youth facility completed and ready for occupancy.

One problem is the area already is occupied. Peterson said he's using the newly separated area to house a dozen female state inmates who are awaiting transit to state prison. The state penitentiary, however, isn't accepting new inmates and Peterson doesn't have anywhere else to put them.

In all, the jail's population is hovering at capacity. Peterson said there were 128 inmates housed there on Friday, slightly more than the jail's designed to accommodate, including a total of 48 state prisoners.

About 30 other inmates are federal Immigration and Naturalization Service prisoners, he said. While the county makes some $500,000 to $600,000 per year by housing INS prisoners, the county has to meet stringent federal regulations in order to qualify as a federal penal facility.

That's where more delay lies ahead, apparently. Peterson said while he's confident state officials will approve the newly created youth section at the jail, federal officials may have a problem with it.

Juveniles are supposed to be housed in an entirely separate building, under federal guidelines, Peterson said, rather than under the same roof with adults.

To win federal approval, the county has to come up with an acceptable plan for dealing with the youths -- how they'll be fed, and exercised, as well as a plan for providing special guard services.

Without an approved plan to use, Youth Court officials have had to make other arrangements for detaining youths before transfer to state facilities. In most cases, youths who would have been held at the jail have been sent home instead.

Meanwhile, Peterson and other sheriffs across the state are hoping the Aug. 15 special session of the Legislature will come up with a way to relieve jail overcrowding from the pileup of state prisoners.

Plans for SWAT team shot down

BY MARY G. SEILEY

Plans for a countywide SWAT team were shot down Monday, at least temporarily, by Bay St. Louis City Council.

Police Chief Frank McNeil and Mayor Eddie Favre had asked council action on a proposed agreement creating a SWAT team that would include officers from Bay St. Louis, Waveland and the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

The trio of departments already operate a Drug Task Force.

A motion to approve the SWAT plan died for lack of a second, however, after Favre and the chief outlined plans for the team and its administrative structure. Council members said they'll discuss the matter at a workshop next Monday.

McNeil said officers from the three departments already have been trained in special operations tactics, and the proposed team already has amassed some special equipment and vehicles through donations.

Some of the training was done with the New Orleans Police Department, he said. In addition, officers completed a special exercise at Stennis Space Center recently under the auspices of the FBI, McNeil said. He added that more training is to be on-going.

"We hope we never have to use it, but we don't want to be in a situation ... without it," McNeil said.

Public safety emergencies such as hostage situations, riots, bomb threats, threats or danger to elected officials, barricaded and armed suspects, and dealing with armed drug dealers are cited as areas of concern to the proposed team. It also would handle surveillance and covert operations in conjunction with the Metropolitan Drug Task Force.

McNeil said the SWAT team would operate very much like the Drug Task Force, except that Bay St. Louis would have administrative control over the SWAT division. Hancock County has administrative control over the drug task force.

The SWAT team would be governed by a "control group" consisting of the two police chiefs and the sheriff. One of the tactical officers would be named unit commander. The city clerk of Bay St. Louis would act as the treasurer and disbursing officer of the division, and the city would be in charge of the physical inventory of the team.

The two cities and the county would be asked to chip in equal shares annually to finance the operation. McNeil said the cost would be $1,500 to $2,000 per year. Unless called into special action, members of the team would perform their normal duties as officers within their respective departments.

With personnel already trained, and equipment on hand, "I hate to leave this thing hanging," the chief said.

But councilmen seemed caught cold by the idea, and said they wanted more time to think about the proposed team. They raised some concerns over a clause that authorizes the special team until December 1996.

"Every time we do something in a hurry, we get stung," said councilman James C. Thrifflay. He said he's still "in the dark" about the operations of the Drug Task Force. At Thrifflay's request, recently, members of the Drug Task Force briefed council on the finances of that operation, and gave an overview of its activities.

McNeil promised regular reports on the SWAT team's operations, finances and inventory.

MILITARY MENTION

AIRMAN NORMAND

Navy Airman Angelo D. Normand, son of Joe and Sandra A. Normand of Pass Christian, recently participated in joint/combined exercise RIMPAC '94 aboard the aircraft carrier USS Constellation, homeported in San Diego.

An acronym meaning Rim of the Pacific, RIMPAC teamed the U.S. with four Pacific nations, Australia, Canada, Japan and the Republic of Korea, for a major maritime exercise near Hawaii.

The exercise involved more than 50 ships, 200 aircraft and 25,000 sailors, airmen, Marines, soldiers and Coast Guardsmen. Multinational exercises like RIMPAC enable naval forces from different countries to improve their ability to operate together.

Normand is one of more than 3,500 crewmen aboard the aircraft carrier which is capable of carrying 75 aircraft.

Evening entertainment will include music by Donnie Clark and a bonfire on the beach, sponsored by the Waveland Fire Department at 9 p.m. There will also be a fireworks display at 9 p.m. on Monday sponsored by J&N Fireworks of Waveland.

Tuesday's activities begin with 9:30 a.m. opening ceremonies and presentation of Colors and the National Anthems for both the United States and Canada by Pioneers.

A 11 a.m. bus tour of New Orleans will follow the opening ceremonies.

Hancock County, Bay St. Louis and Waveland's elected officials will cook a pancake breakfast 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday. RSVP volunteers will help the elected officials serve the pancakes.

Other activities on Wednesday are a 8:30 a.m. golf tournament; 1 to 4 p.m. craft sales; 6 p.m. catfish cookout at the park; and music by Ruth Chin and her band, "The Coast Country."

Thursday's activities will include a dinner dance at the Hancock County Civic Center. Music will be by Donnie Clark and feature Allison Jordan and her band from Nashville.

Lagasse indicated there was a lot of help in organizing the Telephone Pioneer Rally on a local level.

Assistance was received from the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Hancock County Board of Supervisors, cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland; Hancock County Sheriff's office; Waveland and Bay St. Louis police departments; Mississippi National Guard; Mississippi Welcome Center; Congressman Gene Taylor; local casinos; merchants; RSVP and many others.

"The organization does light scheduling of activities in order to give members an opportunity to travel through the area and visit local restaurants and shops," Lagasse added.

Many different businesses have been located in the building over the years. Sam said one of the most successful was a bakery owned by Terrell Bourgeois.

The last grocery in the building was C&S Fine Foods operated by the late brothers-in-law Charles Carter Sr. and John Scaife Sr. "It was the predominant grocery in Bay St. Louis," Dedeaux said.

He remembers back to his childhood and his amazement that the grocery had, not one, but TWO check-out counters.

Roy said there is a pleasant advantage to being located across the street from the Amtrak station in that the Dedeauxs get to meet international visitors from such faraway places as Germany, Finland and Sweden. Many of them stop here to take in the sights of historic Bay St. Louis and are charmed by the atmosphere in the friendly family grocery/deli.

Roy Dedeaux is looking forward to the restoration of the train depot and its enhancement to the general area, but for now his business is "doing pretty good."

depot property originally was assembled through condemnation by the railroad -- if it isn't used for its original purposes, it could revert to the previous owners.

While the title questions loom, city officials are watching the calendar and fearing they may lose eligibility for their restoration grant.

Favre said the city has until Sept. 30 to have architectural drawings prepared for the project. The city hasn't hired an architect yet, however, because officials didn't want to commit funds until the city has title to the depot.

City Council probably will be asked next week to issue a formal request for architectural service proposals, the mayor said.

Meanwhile, Anderson said her plans for giving the collection to the city include only two stipulations: the library can't be divided up or loaned out, and it must retain its name. The library was named for her grandmother, Lulu Williams Anderson.

There are Anderson ties to the Bay St. Louis area. Ann Anderson's grandfather, Vassar, once owned the property where the Diamondhead community ultimately was developed. Ann Anderson created and nurtured the genealogical library to its extensive state, in part with funds from her grandmother, she said.

The library is extensive, containing genealogical information from 34 states, Canada, Germany, Ireland, Scotland, England, Sweden and Spain, she said.

In addition, the library contains vast information on all the Southern states, and New England states as well, she said.

Anderson said the library has outgrown its accommodations at William Carey, and will continue to grow after it's moved to Bay St. Louis. If it doesn't fill up the entire second story of the depot initially, it will before long, she said.

Favre said the city may hire a staff person to oversee the library operation if necessary. In addition, Anderson said she plans to continue to contribute to the collection, and to help run it on a volunteer basis.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

More and more folks are worried about not being able to cut their lawns because of the continuous rains. Of course we could be like those folks in Georgia who had to leave their homes because of heavy rains.

The cleanup after a flood in a home or business is a nightmare. You make one step forward and almost slip two backward in most cases.

Those who witnessed water from hurricanes, like some residents of New Orleans after Hurricane Betsy, know too well the terrible mess created.

Doors won't close, windows won't open, wooden floors buckle, etc.,

I always joke about planting watercress, and I think my yard right now would be a prime garden spot for watercress.

The heavy, mostly afternoon thunderstorms have dumped enough water for months to come.

Our grounds are super soaked, and it looks like no relief is in site.

My comments about dogs loose in the area in my column last week struck a 'nerve' as the saying goes with some people.

We even received a telephone call from a subscriber who complained about cats in her neighborhood tearing open bags of garbage and littering.

She indicated her neighborhood was overrun by cats and someone needed to take action.

Dogs are difficult to control and cats appear to be more so for wardens.

There are probably just as many or more cat owners in the area, and many take very good care of the feline pets.

Still there are those that have cats which are let run loose, just like dogs, and they can cause a lot of problems for residents.

Pets are good, but all should be taken care of properly.

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

A Weekly Editorial
From Mississippi Economic Council

New Clean Water Act is unreasonable

The chairman of the House Public Works Committee, Congressman Norman Mineta of California, has written a new federal Clean Water Act that threatens to shut down many businesses—especially small businesses—with an activist-group approach of environmental protection.

Among its many flaws, the bill would restrict local economic development, increase unfunded mandates for state and local government, and expand the government's role in dictating what landowners can and cannot do with their private property.

Endless permits and activist-designed litmus tests would make economic development or expansion of existing facilities cost-prohibitive for business, industry and government. Business and industry would be required to complete lengthy and costly studies in order to start new operations or expand existing ones. They would be required to make massive up-front investments with no guarantee that operations would ever go beyond government approval.

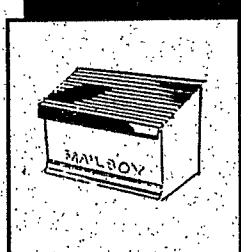

More mandates from government usually cost everyone, through fewer services or higher taxes. Expansion of public services—such as streets and sewer systems—would be cost prohibitive. Additional services would have to be shelved or paid for with exorbitant tax hikes.

Constitutionally guaranteed private-property ownership would once again be trampled by unfair conservation policy. Landowners required to "cease and desist" from their property. PEOPLE—Page 5A

Bay Bridge

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Deliberately placed roofing nail on walking area mars trip

Dear Editor:
Since moving to Waveland in 1989 I've not met anyone I truly dislike, warm friendly, caring people abound in this area. However, there is someone I do not know by name of face that I am disliking more each day. It is the cruel inconsiderate individual that is deliberately scattering new roofing nails on the path around the Waste Water Pond (Oxidation Pond off Old Spanish Trail between Turner and Webb Streets). Several of us walk or jog the one mile path, young people, bike there and bird watchers both local and visitors use this area. There have been several flat tires due to the nails, and in early June while jogging, one of the rusty roofing nails went through my running shoe and into the ball of my foot. Thanks to this person I had a less than perfect trip to Alaska since each step was painful and made me have ill thoughts toward this person. I have since had to seek medical attention. We try to keep the nails collected but they keep appearing on a regular basis. I did report this to the Waveland police. It is sad that one person can make what could be a peaceful haven a threat. I hope I never meet this mean spirited person because so far I like all the folks I've met in Waveland and Bay St. Louis. Jo-Ann C. Mumme Waveland

Bay High class reunion took a lot of effort

Dear Editor,
Over the July 4 weekend we attended our 25th class reunion with Bay High School. The planning and efforts made by the committee that organized the reunion was obvious to all of us who attended. Everything from the beach party Friday night to the dance on Saturday were most enjoyable. The reunion gave many of us an opportunity to see each other after many years, and it would not have been possible without the hard work of committee members Doris Davis Felder, Elaine Blaize LaFontaine, Janet Kidd Freeman, Mary Helen Piazza Neal and Mike Perniciaro. On behalf of the Bay High School Class of '69, we thank each of you. Sincerely, Carol "Catchie" Crider Choina and Lynn Summers Faye Bay St. Louis

Beach resident questions bed and breakfast support

Dear Editor,
I would like to respond to the quarter page ad in Sunday's Sea Coast Echo. The timing, sponsorship and very presence of the ad opens several questions. How can the addition of one bed and breakfast with two or three bedrooms add to the attractiveness of Bay St. Louis? The 200 motel rooms now under construction in proper zones will provide a much more effective solution to the room availability problem. Why is the 'association' interested in the project — which they identify as 'development'? They purport to represent the views of 2,000 members. How many of them reside in the city, own property and pay taxes in the city? How many of that number reside in the R-1 zone in question?

If they all lived here, single mathematics would indicate that every fourth person you meet today is a dues-paying member. Probably not! The issue is neighborhood land use in an R-1 residential zone, which deserves the protection provided in city Ordinance 220. The affected land owners, save one, are opposed to any special exception which permits a commercial enterprise in an R-1 zone. Even if that one land owner is a member of the association, it ill behoves a partisan, special interest group to intrude on the matter. They obviously have no stake or investment in the situation. Sincerely, E. A. Michaelson Bay St. Louis

Quotes column spurs commendation to Bay Police

Dear Chief McNeil:
I have been meaning to write this letter to commend you on your officers for their consistent patrolling, and the recent column in today's Sea Coast Echo has spurred me to action. I am a local attorney and my office is on Highway 90 in Bay St. Louis. Quite frequently, I have to return to my office after supper to work. Often, I am the only one at the office at nights, and I get scared sometimes. However, almost every time I work late, a Bay St. Louis police officer drives by my office and shines his or her light in the door to make sure the office is secure and that I am alright. You can not imagine how much that means to me. I realize that the officers probably have better things to do, but it greatly eases my mind that someone is keeping an eye on this office. I apologize for not writing this letter sooner. Your officers have done an excellent job patrolling as far as I am concerned, and the extra time they take to pull off of Highway 90 and check on me and my office is very comforting to me on the nights I have to work late. If anyone from your department should ever need anything or have any questions, I would be happy to take time out of my schedule to talk with them. With kind regards, we remain, Very truly yours, Smith & Liston/Lancaster Elise E. Sims

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

House preserves readiness

After years of slashing the defense budget to downsize America's armed forces, a veteran artillery officer became alarmed. While the policy of "cutting the fat" at the Pentagon had been pushed by Democrats and Republicans alike, it was now painfully apparent a great deal of muscle had been cut. The nation was quite unprepared for war. That outspoken World War I veteran was Missouri Senator Harry Truman, and the year was 1938.

Truman had seen first-hand the dismantling of America's military forces and industrial base as he and thousands of American soldiers returned home as victors from the Great War. After World War I, however, widespread public approval pushed U.S. armed forces into an alarming state of unpreparedness. Most everyone had forgotten how unprepared we were for World War I.

Because of our lapse of memory after every major war, we have paid a high price in lives each time a new conflict erupts. Echoing Truman's argument 56 years later, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, John M. Shalikashvili, recently warned Congress, "All of you know what we went through after World War II, after Korea, and again after Vietnam. It was a cycle of declines followed by disaster that we cannot and must not repeat."

Some have compared the perpetual buildup and drawdown of U.S. forces throughout our history to a roller coaster. No soldier in this country's history has ever completed a military career when the nation did not engage in an armed conflict at least once. Unfortunately, on many occasions our soldiers and sailors have been placed in grave danger because of the lack of foresight on the part of Congress. For example, soon after the fall of the Berlin Wall, many will remember the foolhardy phrase, "Peace Dividend." If history has taught us anything, it's that there is no such thing as a peace dividend. After several years of detrimental cuts in defense, over my strong objection, the message has been heard. On June 29, the House endorsed a $244 billion defense spending bill that included $3.2 billion to combat early signs of a decline in force readiness. In light of recent shortages for critical spare parts, unbudgeted operations in Somalia, the Persian Gulf, and the former Republic of Yugoslavia, no one in Congress can deny that the overall operational readiness of U.S. forces has begun to suffer.

The largest single piece of the readiness package will be used to overhaul ships, planes and tanks. Additional funds will be used to pay for an increase in the number of training exercises and expand the stockpile of parts and equipment stored for use in case of war. The House also approved funds to beef up the supply, communications and intelligence networks of U.S. forces in South Korea in recognition of the tense standoff over North Korea's apparent efforts to develop nuclear weapons.

Although America works for future peace, the past has proven that we must not tolerate chance. To neglect preparedness, is to neglect our American principles. Truman's warning to American Legionnaires in 1938 still holds true today. America wants peace but, we are being awfully naive if we close our eyes to possible future conflicts.

Pilot saves child's life

BY SHARON K. SAUCIER

There are not many people who want to get involved in situations today, but thankfully on April 15 there was one such person, and because of his quick thinking a small boy is alive today.

Captain Michael "Mad Dog" Watson, an Express One International pilot who was flying Casino Magic charter flights, was staying at the Waveland Resort Inn when the boy, who did not know how to swim, was pushed into the pool by another child.

He stayed on the bottom of the pool for several minutes before being brought to the surface.

Watson heard the screams for help and saw the boy surrounded by people and he went to the boy and began administering CPR.

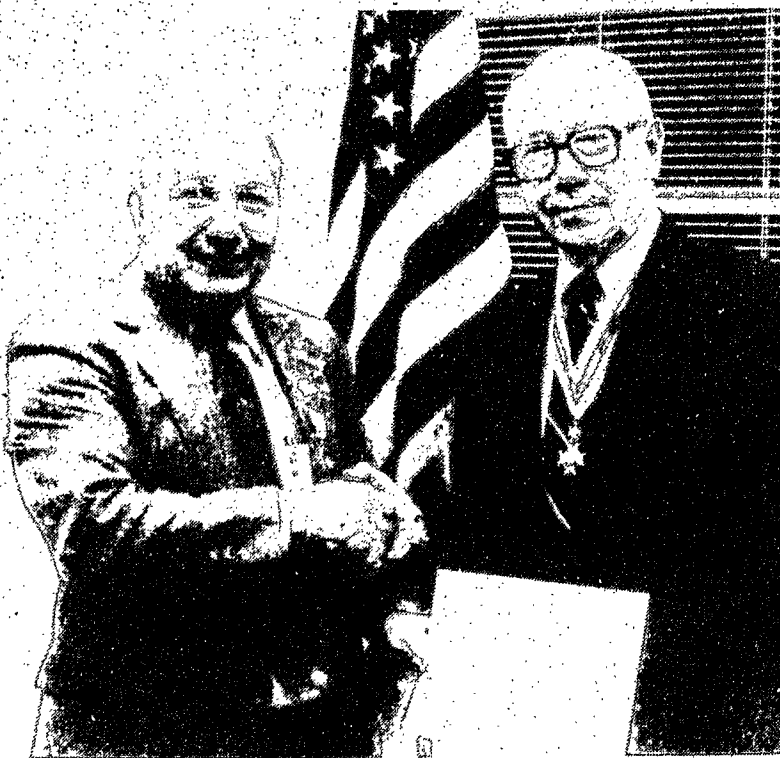

According to reports the boy had no pulse or respiration and Watson had to perform CPR for almost four minutes before the child started breathing again.

Watson was awarded a plaque for his heroism on June 25 by the staff at Stennis International Airport.

Site Supervisor at Stennis, Sergeant Dan Hill of Gulf Coast Security Services, awarded the plaque to Watson which read: "To a hero at heart. Thanks for a job well done."

Hill said that there should be more people like Watson and that people who do good things like Watson did deserve to be recognized.

"Something is always said about the bad that people do. People that do good should be recognized and that is what we were trying to do for him," Hill said.

All residents need to know 911 address

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS

During times of medical or police emergencies it is necessary for all residents to know their 911 address, Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said late Wednesday.

"We receive 911 emergency calls and some people placing the calls do not even know their 911 address, they will give us something like post office box number, or General Delivery. There is no way for sheriff's deputies or Mobile Medie to respond properly to such an address," Peterson added.

The sheriff continued, "By knowing your proper 911 address, a person could possibly save their own, or a family member's life."

Numbers need to be properly displayed on their residence, or mailbox too, Peterson said.

Those who may have misplaced, or forgotten their 911 number, can call the Hancock County Tax Collector's office at 467-0130.

Bay-Waveland's school board honors Yarborough

BY CHARLEE MARSHALL

A presentation for a job well done was made to Gary Yarborough during the regular meeting of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District Board of Trustees meeting on Monday night.

School Board president Jim Wilcox awarded Yarborough the plaque of appreciation for his participation as board president, secretary and member. Then, superintendent Paul Tisdale presented Yarborough with a pass to attend all district school functions free-of-charge and, jokingly, the freedom to criticize him at any time.

Several other routine matters were approved during the meeting including the minutes of June 7, 9, 13, 21 and 30 and the claim docket for the past month.

The board gave its stamp of approval to the Five-Year Plan/Outcome Performance Report, which is coming to a conclusion in the cycle. Dr. Betty Jones, assistant superintendent, said she was available to answer any further questions.

Members approved McGraw-Hill as a sole source supplier for phonics workbooks for Waveland Elementary School.

They also decided to award low bidder, Southeastern Photography, the job of taking school pictures, although there was a problem with getting retakes last year. There was a discussion about taking pictures for school identification cards for students and school district employees, but Superintendent Tisdale discouraged this practice for the time being.

"I don't think badges or ID cards are necessary," he told them.

The DeMouin Co. was low bidder on the band uniforms for Bay High. Board members approved the company's bid for 80 uniforms at $21,384.

Discussion of retaining an architect and further talk about the board's concerns over travel policies and expenses was tabled for executive session.

The resignation of John Necaise was accepted and the board approved hiring Marietta Murray as an elementary school teacher and Cheryl Blanchard as a special education teacher, pending her certification.

Joe Colson, a resident of Waveland, addressed the board about his concerns about the traffic at Waveland Elementary School. He views the problem as "quite dangerous" and asked that the board designate certain areas for bus parking.

Colson, who has extensive background in government and community affairs, was invited to present his plan to improve the situation and he agreed to undertake the task.

Another concerned citizen, Geraldine Lang, asked the board members to consider installing a deserving young student or students to sit in on their meetings and provide input.

James Wilcox, school board president, assured her the board would make the opportunity available to the students when school begins.

Also on Lang's mind was the issue of student handbooks, which are now in rough draft and are about 60 percent of the way through revision.

The board was not ready to approve the handbooks, so a meeting will be called to approve them, Superintendent Tisdale said.

Board member Richard Flowers told Lang that the board welcomes public input, but that members have the ultimate responsibility for approving what goes into them.

Superintendent Tisdale gave Lang a copy of last year's student handbook for her to read and evaluate, so that she can voice her opinions on any regulations that needed to be reviewed or changed in current copies.

Downtown business development up for discussion

BY MARY G. SEILEY

The future development of Bay St. Louis' downtown commercial section, including the depot area, is up for discussion at a public meeting tonight.

The city's Planning and Zoning Commission is holding a special meeting on the topic at 7 p.m., in the auditorium of Bay High School.

It is the second in a series of special commission meetings concerning a long-range, comprehensive development plan.

There is no set agenda of issues set for discussion tonight, but likely candidates include what direction city officials will take regarding development along the Main Street corridor.

Several blocks of Main are commercial, including some old homes that have been converted to shops. Whether the commercializing should march all the way to Highway 90 is up for discussion.

So is the future of the depot area -- city plans to buy and restore the old building on Railroad Avenue are expected to spark new commercialization in the area.

And city officials want to consider how much additional commercialization the downtown should foster within its core beachfront area. How massive should new buildings be? What kinds of commercial operations should be allowed?

Considerations such as traffic and parking are expected to attract some public input. City officials also expect to talk about a proposed comfort station, which the city may build to attract tour buses to town.

Other topics may include the logistics of trash collection in the commercial area.

and desist" on wetlands would not be compensated for their property loss. Moreover, the definition of a wetland would reach far beyond bogs, marshes, and areas with standing water, including millions of acres of dry land.

No one would be left untouched by this proposed harmful environmental policy.

Government, small businesses, big businesses, hospitals, local schools, colleges and universities, churches, and most of all-taxpayers-would all be caught in a flood of poor environmental policy and crippling taxes.

But there's more. Not only is it bad policy because of its costs, but it is also bad policy because experts say the Clean Water Act does no more to "clean water" than current laws are doing.

IN HAND AROUND DIAMONDHEAD

By Margaret Williamson

BALLOTS

The Diamondhead POA has sent out first-class letters with explanation, ballot, ballot envelope and postage paid return envelope to approximately 2,200 members who did not vote on June 18.

The election committee, in order to complete the election process, needs your help. If you are not familiar with the candidates, you may appoint someone to fill out the ballot for you.

If you have no opinion and do not wish to vote for any candidates, you may check the box, "Do not vote this ballot, for quorum purposes only."

If you have not already done so, please act now. We all want positive things for our community, its residents and property owners.

HOLLYWOOD ON THE COAST

Have you noticed what looks like dressing rooms on wheels across from Diamondhead's Plaza Shopping Center?

Well, you're not seeing things, since a lot of the film crew from Elysian Pictures' "Sister Island" movie are staying at the Diamondhead Motel.

Writer, producer and director Avery Crounse and a cast and crew of nearly 100, hired from the Mississippi Coast, the nation and especially CA's movie capital, have been on various locations in Hancock and Harrison counties bringing Crounse's story about the deadly 1969 storm, Hurricane Camille back to life.

The unusual twists and turns of "Sister Island" remain secret until the film's national release this winter, possibly around Christmas. Isn't this exciting to be happening in and around "Paradise?"

CELEBRATION

If you happened to be driving by on Mannalani Place in Diamondhead Sunday, July 3 and saw many folks, children, babies, dogs and puppies enjoying great food, drinks, games, etc., it was those crazy "Many Loons" celebrating their traditional July 4 on July 3. Those guys really know how to throw a good party and have a good time.

CHURCH CAMPAIGN

The Rev. Paul Richards of Diamondhead's Community Church announces in the July bulletin that the church's three-year gift campaign was completed June 30 and wants his congregation to be pleased at the faithful response of the membership.

He states, "We are blessed. Blessed by generous people. Blessed by people who care about the present and future of the church and its congregation."

"Blessed with leaders who have the vision to challenge the members and the ability to motivate them as well."

Rev. Richards goes on to say "that it has been an interesting, fascinating and challenging three years, and that this kind of success speaks well for the future."

This sums up what wonderful folks we have living in Diamondhead who contribute so much of themselves.

DIAMONDHEAD KIDS

Don't forget some of our talented youngsters who make

BIG DANCE

Don't forget the wonderful dinner/dance at the country club Saturday, Aug. 6 with cocktails at 6:30 p.m. Dance to the music of Leon Kerner at 7:30 p.m. Remember the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans and the Blue Room?

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

Have you noticed a new road going by the Diamondhead Supermarket? As you go past, delightful, whimsical animal signs of various colors mark the way to a new medical/professional complex being built by Consul Inc. of Diamondhead on three acres of an approximately seven-acre site with ample parking for the central area.

This new development will have a lovely name, "Shepherd Square — Indian Hill" (another nice name) is also making progress, clearing the lands behind the post office facility, and almost finished with the pretty white building across the pond from Hancock Bank. Watch us grow!

THOUGHTS TO SHARE

To look ahead with bright new hopes to every new tomorrow,

To share another's happiness, to feel another's sorrow. To be enthused with life itself and each new undertaking,

To keep a happy dream or two always in the making.

To love the beauty of the Spring and every passing season,

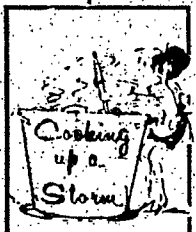

To laugh at nothing now and then for no apparent reason.

To cherish friends and family ties, to know the joy of giving.

And keep a song within your heart,

This is "the joy of living."

May you all find "the joy of living" all the weeks of the year.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

Make the most of fig season

There was a time when it seemed that there were fig trees growing in back yards all over town. There don't seem to be as many these days, although fig trees are prolific in our semi-tropical climate.

Not as many trees are used in landscape and yard plantings as was the case in bygone days; at least, it seems so to me.

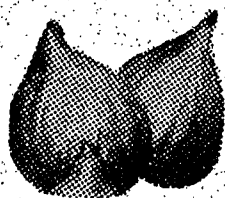

Old age and disease, as well as storms, have also taken their toll of fig trees, and many trees have not been replaced.

Some years ago, in the off-season, Coast seafood canneries packed those luscious figs, which local housewives — and many a youngster — had picked from their backyard trees; and many canned figs ended up as a special treat in dining cars on our country's trains.

The season's all too short, but I make the most of it as often as I can. In our sultry summer weather, figs are relished atop breakfast cereal or toast or biscuits, added to rich custardy ice cream for a special flavor treat, and made into preserves for a taste of summer when cold winter days come.

One of my favorite fig desserts is:

FRESH FIG MOUSSE

1 cup crushed fresh figs
3 Tbsp. lemon juice
1/2 cup confectioner's sugar
1 cup heavy cream, whipped Fold lemon juice and sugar into crushed figs, then fold in the whipped cream. Place in freezing tray or mold, and freeze until firm. (4 to 6 servings)

And, if you want to "put up" figs, and have enough on hand:

FIG PRESERVES

2 quarts fresh figs
2 cups sugar
1 cup water
2 slices lemon

Blanch the figs (parboil briefly in boiling water). Combine the sugar and the cup of water in a large saucepan and heat, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Add the lemon slices and the figs, and cook ever so slowly until the figs are tender and transparent.

Fill sterilized jars with the figs. Pour the syrup over them to the top of the jar and seal. (2 pints)

ASK THE V.A.

By Donald Mauffray

At a hearing before the House Veterans Affairs subcommittee on compensation, pension and insurance, the Clinton administration gave its support to a bill that would compensate veterans suffering from the mysterious Persian Gulf syndrome.

The bill was introduced by Rep. G. V. "Sonny" Montgomery (D-MS), who chairs the House Veterans Affairs Committee in response to the outcry by veterans suffering from undiagnosed illnesses which, in many cases, are preventing them from working and supporting their families.

H.W. 4386 would authorize the VA to pay compensation benefits to Persian Gulf veterans who suffer chronic disabilities resulting from illnesses for which there are no diagnoses.

Under the legislation, the VA could compensate if the illnesses became manifest within one year of the veterans' departure from the Persian Gulf theater.

Compensation would be provided for up to three years, while further research into the causes of the illnesses is carried out.

The bill also authorizes appropriations to conduct additional research into the causes of the illness, and to conduct a health survey of Persian Gulf veterans.

VA Secretary Jesse Brown said he has long supported some measure that would permit the VA to do more for those suffering from the baffling illnesses.

The VA was handicapped by the fact that no cause for the complaints have been discovered.

Brown suggested that the bill be expanded beyond the one-year limit so that veterans whose symptoms manifested late, or who waited to join the VA's Gulf syndrome registry, are not exempted from compensation. He suggested that a two-year period would better fulfill the veterans' needs.

GULF VETERANS TO GET FREE HEALTH EXAMS

VA is encouraging veterans of the Persian Gulf War who may be concerned about possible environmental exposures in the Gulf region to take advantage of VA's health monitoring program.

While an aggressive research program continues to clarify the nature of any ill health patterns in such veterans, services are being offered now, including a comprehensive physical examination and lab tests. These are free to any concerned Gulf veterans by appointment in every VA medical center.

benefits

In addition, a new law requested by VA simplifies high-priority access to follow-up care for veterans with any condition that VA physicians think could stem from the Gulf environment. Already, 16,025 vets have taken part in the examination protocol.

While veterans often have described a wide variety of symptoms that are common in primary care medicine — including fatigue, muscle aches, joint pain and skin rashes — VA has not fully documented a specific illness or pattern of disease pointing to the cause or causes of these symptoms.

VA's Medical Research Service recently provided supplemental funds for several VA medical centers to expand investigations in such areas as cognitive functioning and immunological status of Persian Gulf veterans.

Don't Social Security in your retirement plans

DRY C. V. Stephens
Columnist, Manager
The Gulfport

"It might be fatally stupid to include Social Security in your retirement calculations." So began the "advice" a syndicated columnist recently gave a couple in their fifties who had written to him asking for his help in planning for their retirement.

He went on to tell them that if they thought they would one day be entitled to Social Security benefits, they are "living in Lala Land."

Of course, everyone is entitled to his or her opinion, but any opinion (especially those of an "advice" columnist) should have some basis in the facts.

In this case, I think the columnist's opinions came right out of "Never-Never Land."

The columnist told his readers that Social Security "... is a giant sucking scheme taken over by Congress ... the funds from which are used to finance the deficit."

He also claimed that according to his "ear on the hill," Congress can do "anything it pleases with those funds."

Those stories perpetuate the myth that Congress wasted Social Security money by spending it on other government programs.

Here are the facts: Social Security takes in more money in taxes than it pays out in benefits—last year alone to the tune of about $50 billion.

Any money not used to pay benefits and administrative costs (which, by the way, are in the neighborhood of only one percent of revenues) is invested in Treasury Bonds. This is nothing new.

It is the way Social Security's reserves always have been invested. Of course, once the bonds are purchased, the government can use Social Security money to pay for other programs and services.

But the important difference between what the columnist called a "sucking scheme" and reality is that Social Security's reserves are invested. And just as you expect the government to pay you back with interest when you redeem your bonds, Social Security fully expects the government to make good on its obligations to the system's trust funds.

Some may question where the government will get the money it will need to redeem the billions of dollars in bonds Social Security will hold in the 21st century as baby-boomers near retirement age.

Will Social Security taxes increase? Will benefits be cut? Current plans call for a variation of the latter: people born after 1937 will have to wait longer to receive full retirement benefits.

Today, retirees collect full (100 percent) benefits at 65. People born in 1938 will have to wait until age 65 and 2 months to do the same.

People born in 1939 will have to wait until age 65 and 4 months.

The "full" retirement age continues to increase until it reaches age 67 for people born in 1960 and later.

Will more changes be necessary? That is a question decision-makers and Congress will be discussing in the future.

But the columnist was wrong when he said "Congress can do anything it pleases with (Social Security)." He should have said,

"Congress can do anything the people please with Social Security."

After all, we live in a democracy, and it is ultimately up to all of us to decide what we want out of our Social Security system.

Emmel is military academy graduate

Army Cadet Scott J. Emmel was graduated from U.S. Military Academy Preparatory School in Fort Monmouth, Red Bank, N.J.

The school is designed to assist students in meeting the strict academic and physical requirements of the academy.

Students received extensive instruction in English, mathematics, physical education and military training.

This summer, graduates will enter the Academy at West Point, N.Y. to begin four years of study leading to a bachelor's degree and a commission in the U.S. Army.

The academy is the nation's oldest service academy. Each year more than 4,000 men and

And as you're thinking about what you want from Social Security, remember this: In the past 60 years, Social Security has changed many times to adapt to population trends, economic conditions, changes in society's values, and to the wishes of the people.

It will change more in the next 60 years. But a Social Security program that provides benefits to retirees, to workers with disabilities, and to the family members of a breadwinner who has died will always be the cornerstone of our nation's financial planning network.

Emmel is the son of Joseph B. and Linda A. Emmel of Diamondhead.

He is a 1993 graduate of St. Stanislaus High School.

Cub Scout Day Camp

Mark Jamieson talks about equipment used by the forest commission.

Cub Scout Day Camp was held the week of June 13-17 at Our Lady of the Gulf Church in Bay St. Louis.

Fifty Scouts from the Bay-Waveland area, from Packs 20, 208, 220 and 630, attended. They learned about archery and B-B guns, nature, sports and crafts.

Many special guests came to share time with the Cub Scouts. Officers Dan Osco and Joe Keyfler from the Bay St. Louis Police Department showed them a video and did a class on drugs. Officers Dan Walter and Jim Martin from the department did a Civil War re-enactment and its SWAT Team taught the boys about the old and new ways of law enforcement.

Jay Loiacano, of Loiacano's Health Club in Bay St. Louis, gave a talk on health. He led the Scouts in doing exercises.

Brother Lee, from St. Stanislaus, did his magic act. Martin De Salvo, with a Mississippi K-9 group, brought his dogs, Shadow, a full-blooded wolf, and Beauregard. Mike Reader, weather man from WLOX-Channel 13, shared his knowledge about the weather and the cubs made weather vanes.

Mobile Medic made a special trip to show their ambulance and its equipment. Mike Smith from Waveland Fire Department taught a class on basic first aid. Mark Jamieson, from the forest commission, talked on endangered species of animals in Mississippi and also showed the boys equipment they use in the forest.

John Moleski also came by and showed them snakes of the area, all non-poisonous, and told them about turtles.

Mr. Mississippi, the body-builder Charles Hawkins, did some muscle flexing. He told the boys they could be anything they wanted to be — if they tried and didn't give up.

Susan Adams, Cub Scout Day Camp director, thanks everyone who helped with the effort. Many organizations and individuals gave generously of time and services.

"Without them, the day camp wouldn't have been a great success," she said.

"A very special thanks to Father Peter Mockler for the use of the beautiful grounds at Our Lady of the Gulf Church," she added.

and the World Cup: a growing sport!

I hardly saw the ball until it slammed into the net behind the Bolivian goalie. The score is 2-0 in favor of the Spaniards.

The referee lined the ball up for the kickoff for Bolivia. As the Spaniards were still doing a little celebrating, the referee blew the whistle to continue play. Bolivia drove through a porous Spanish defense and rocked a goal home for the green and red. The Bolivian contingent let themselves be heard. As quick as the Bolivians seemed to be out of contention they were right back in the game.

The Spaniards and the Bolivians continued to battle for possession of the ball by making phenomenal moves and magical passes only to be intercepted by the opposing team. Spain finally sealed the victory in the 88th minute of play. The Spanish nailed a headshot on the backside of the goal from a cornerkick.

The referee blew the whistle and the game came to a close. The players met in the center of the field to offer congratulations and sympathies. They made the traditional swapping of the jerseys and slowly walked off the field. The fans filed out in the thousands chanting cheers relief. The weather made no difference to the fans for they flocked in mind boggling numbers to cheer their team to victory. Actually 63,089 fans jam packed the mystical stadium in support of their idols.

As the game drew near and the teams were warming up, the fans jeered back and forth in languages I could not begin to comprehend. They were clad in their national colors, with painted faces, and waving national flags. The fans resembled wild animals salivating at the side waiting for the kill. They were a rabid bunch.

When the game started, the stands rocked with stomps of feet and air was pierced with screams and cheers.

The first 45-minute half progressed rather slowly with both teams alternating possessions in blinks of an eye.

These players are phenomenal. They can practically make the ball talk. It seems like the ball was an extension of their foot. I know soccer and know how to play the game. However, I not once made the ball move like these players did. Even if I tried to do it like that I may have injured myself or something equivalent to that.

As the fans were rooting their team on, it seemed like they all got together for a moment. At this moment, the whole stadium participated in performing a wave throughout the stands. It was a sight to see all 63,089 fans take part in a wave that hailed the players on the turf.

Then, as quick as a bolt of lightning Spain had a breakaway toward the Bolivian goal. The forward faked out one defender and then the next. He shot high into the right corner just above the outstretched body of the Bolivian goalie. The crowd erupted in a deafening roar. No doubt who had the largest contingent.

Spain led 1-0 at the intermission.

As the second half progressed the fans did not lose their intensity, which surprised me. With possession changing hands, or should I say feet, so much and no real breakaways, I began to mesh the teams together. I started to see the game as just one team making incredible moves with a ball and their feet.

However, as quickly as I saw the teams as one they were separate again. Spain had a monster breakaway catching Bolivia in transition from offense to defense. It was a rocket shot from the upper left corner of the on as the years progressed and we got better, we made it to state competition and fared very well.

We were not the flashy type of ballclub. We just went out and played. Our mission was to score more goals than the opposition and we did that on numerous occasions.

Although we were not the developed soccer player, we played because we liked the sport. Furthermore, we may be the forgotten ones but we were the first.

We gave rise to the developed players of today's community like Brad Cannon, Brooks Quinlan, Joe Dobson, and Charles Oliver. The players of today will give rise to the players of tomorrow.

As the popularity of soccer continues to grow at an exponential rate so should the fans and its support. Soccer is a team sport that allows a person to learn teamwork and unity. It teaches him or her not to be an individual.

Gex wins state competition

Joseph Gex, II, of Bay St. Louis, won the triple jump competition of the State Games of Mississippi track and field meet on July 9. The meet was held at Ray Stadium in Meridian.

Gex won the competition with a lead of 41'3 1/2". He also competed in the long jump and the 400m dash. Gex placed third in the long jump with a lead of 20'3 1/4" and placed second in the 400m dash.

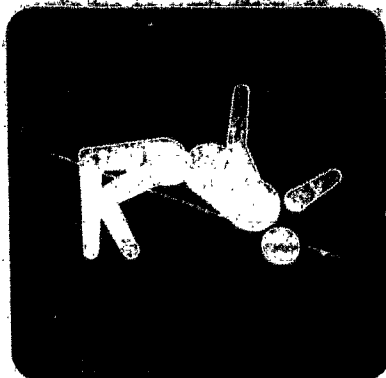

Gex was competing in the 19-24 year old division.

He commented, "I competed in these same three events last year. This year I had the chance to win the triple jump and took full advantage of it."

The weather conditions were right for me and I had a good meet.

Gex continued, "In all honesty, I am shocked that I won the event. The man I jumped against was the national junior college champion last year and has gone over 52 feet in the triple jump. I guess I had a good day and he had a bad one. My other events were solid but I feel I could improve on them."

The State Games of Mississippi is in its third year. It is an amateur sports fest for all ages. The games have many other sports, not just track and field. The games offer baseball, basketball, archery, swimming, tennis, soccer, gymnastics, powerlifting, and a host of other sports. It is a fun weekend for the serious athlete and an even better weekend for the not-so-serious athlete.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Award-winning Turtle summer rerun

The turtle is on vacation this week. He sent in this column for which he won an award from the Mississippi Press Association in the sports writer of the year contest. It ran in the Sea Coast Echo November 11, 1993.

It's time to go fishin' y'all. Looks like winter time has come a little earlier this year than in years past. The fronts that have been moving through have dropped the water temperature to the 60's. Cooler water temperature usually means that it is time for the fishin' buddies to change from their successful summertime tactics to the immensely difficult wintertime tactics of trolling the bayous and canals. You ask, "what's so difficult about trolling?" The answer to that question is: "hey man, it's tough having to sit in a boat, out in the fresh air, for hours at a time." I mean you've gotta sit in the boat with your feet up on some type of foot rest, making great effort to control the direction of your boat, while it is traveling at the breakneck speed of at least one or two miles per hour. As an after thought, maybe two miles an hour is too fast a speed for wintertime trolling.

Now that everyone is ready to rush out to their boats and start dragging baits down the bayous, let's talk about wintertime trolling for specks. First of all specks, just like people, don't seem to like cold weather. Unlike people, specks can't put on extra clothes when the temperature goes down. So they do the next best thing; they head for deeper water. The deeper the water the more stable the water temperature will be on the bottom. Somebody said that water acts as its own insulator. What all this means to the fisherman, that wants to go after the trout, is that you gotta find the places where the water is deep. The colder the water temperature, the less likely you are to find trout in the usual summertime locations along the shallow areas of the shoreline. Where will you find deep water? Why in the bayous and canals of course.

Now that we know where the trout like to "hang out" during cooler weather, the next question is how do we catch the rascals? The best way to catch them is to use a fishhook. Since a plain fishhook does not seem to be very attractive to the average trout, you might wanna consider having the fish hook attached to some thing like Queen Beetles with the green fleck design, 52M18 Mirror

Lures, Thin-Fin in the Sun Perch pattern, or Rattletraps. All of those lures produced fish over the past week.

My personal favorite this past week was the Queen Beetle in tandem. I found that by using two of the 3/8 ounce jig bodies together I was able to get closer to the bottom of the bayou while trolling. To emphasize the effectiveness of using the two together, I have to relate that I had one pole with a single beetle on it and a second pole with the tandem combination. I did not catch one trout on the single while the trailing beetle of the combination consistently produced fish.

To make this combination I generally use about four feet of 20 pound mono. After I tie a beetle to both ends of the mono I arrange them so that one will trail about one foot behind the other.

For those folks that want to use baits other than those that contain lead jig heads, you might want to consider putting a weight about three or four feet in front of your artificial. There are several different sinker weight styles that are available. The ones that seems to work the best are the ones that have what looks like a pull chain on the front and back of the weight. This allows the line to keep itself from twisting up in a knot because the bead chain allows the line freedom of movement.

The speed of your forward movement will have an impact on how deep your bait will be fished behind your boat. The faster you go, the shallower your bait will run.

Most of the trout caught in Bayou Caddy, over the past week, were caught in the area between Bryan's Bayou and the three canals by Lambert Lane. There are reports of trout being caught in the area between the first of the three canals and the bend of the bayou using live shrimp fished about six feet under a cork.

Johnny Davis reports that the really big flounder are starting to show up in the Herron Bay area. He went spearing, out of his boat, the other night and stuck about forty flounders. The biggest went about seven pounds. The average was about four pounds.

Ringo, of Bordages boat launch fame, has a terrible tail of woe this week. It seems that his outboard has fallen and it can't get up. I offered him my sledge hammer, to "fix" it, on the theory that if you can't fix something get a bigger hammer. I don't know why, but he declined the use of the sledge. Any way, he told me that he needs parts. He did not tell me what kind of parts. If anybody has parts, contact Ringo.

This weeks wonderful wise words. You will need a boat to go trolling.

Do you think Ringo is talking about body parts, turtle?

Big Buck contest set

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
The Mississippi Wildlife Federation announced that they will be accepting applications for their annual Big Buck contest. This is the largest contest of its kind in the state. The contest is held in conjunction with the Extravaganza set for August 5-7 at the Mississippi Trade Mart in Jackson.

Anyone who took a white-tailed deer within the state borders last year is eligible to enter. Ribbons and plaques will be awarded in Gun, Archery, and Muzzleloader categories in men, women, and youth classes.

The scoring will be based on the Boone and Crockett system. Entries must be brought to the Trade Mart between 3 pm and 9 pm, Friday, August 5, or between 9 am and 10 am on Saturday, August 6. All heads must be left on exhibit until 5 pm Sunday, August 7.

The entry fee for the contest

Tickets for the game are $6 for adults and $2 for children 12 and under.

The athletes arrived at Mississippi College to start practice on July 11.

Coach Blackwell's tireless efforts as a player, coach, and administrator called for the renaming of the classic.

Blackwell's legendary career in sports lasted a half a century.

He was an All-SEC guard for the Ole Miss Rebels and played on the Rebels' first SEC championship team in 1947 under Coach Johnny Vaught.

Hesigned to play NFL football with the New York Giants but decided to go into the coaching profession. He became the youngest junior college coach ever when he took over the job at Northwest Mississippi at the tender age of 21.

Coach Blackwell also coached at West Tallahatchie, Greenville, and Pascagoula High Schools before becoming assisstant head football coach and Associate Professor for 14 years at Mississippi College.

Blackwell was instrumental in organizing the MC Sports Hall of Fame. He was a charter member of the Mississippi Association of Coaches, an organization that he would guide for most of his career.

Under his direction, the M.A.C. created a Hall of Fame and awards program for coaches at all levels. Blackwell was involved in the creation of the all-star games throughout the state, the Mississippi-Alabama all-star game, and many creative policies in athletics.

Coach Blackwell passed away on September 12, 1993. He will long be remembered for his tireless efforts in the promotion of athletics on all levels.

is $15 and includes a three-day pass to the show.

State's timber tops billion dollar mark

By Linda M. Breazeale
MSU Ag Communications
Mississippi's timber industry became the state's first agricultural commodity to break the $1 billion mark based on final 1993 figures.

"Mississippi's forest industry harvested and delivered more than $1 billion worth of forest products to mills and other processors in 1993," said Bob Daniels, extension forestry specialist at Mississippi State University.

"This harvest value was nearly 26 percent higher than in 1992 and is a new all-time high harvest value for Mississippi forestry."

The total value of Mississippi's 1993 timber harvest "delivered" to the first point of processing (such as a pulpwood yard or sawmill) was more than $1.02 billion.

Strong demand and high prices combined to thrust forest products to the top of Mississippi's agricultural commodity list in 1993 — above poultry and eggs ($904 million) and cotton ($623 million).

Timber demand has continued to run high after the natural disasters of Hurricane Andrew in 1992 and the Midwest flood in 1993. Within the state, Mississippi has experienced a growth in markets with industry expansions especially in north Mississippi.

Although national demand has been high, supplies have been short because of the decreased cutting in the North-west states. This supply/demand factor greatly influenced prices.

Daniels said price increases were the big story in Mississippi forestry in 1993. Stumpage and delivered (point-of-sale) prices were significantly higher for major forest products.

Dr. Bob Martin, agricultural economist at MSU, said prices have continued to have a great deal of fluctuation within short periods of time, but have generally averaged higher.

Young Scholar

Kenny Spansel of Bay St. Louis was among 20 high school students who participated in the June 5-24 Young Scholars program on freshwater ecology at the University of Mississippi. During the three-week camp, students have an opportunity to gain hands-on experience in biological research. The camp is funded by the National Science Foundation and sponsored by the Ole Miss biology department.

Hands-on training offers unique opportunities

With intense concentration, the teen-ager carefully lowered the glass bottle into the pond, careful to avoid the minnow-sized fish lurking in the murky waters. With a look of satisfaction, the student noted no bubbles were present in the bottle then quickly tucked the bottle beneath his shirt.

No fish, no bubbles, and no sunshine. The absence of all these were critical to the test — one of many during the three-week freshwater ecology camp at The University of Mississippi.

Some high school students see summer as a time of laid-back relaxation. Others see it as a chance to earn extra income. For 40 10th, 11th and 12th grade students, summer is a chance to learn about possible careers through hands-on training at the three-year-old camp at Ole Miss.

The young scholars program in freshwater ecology is open to students from Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana and Alabama. Applicants are nominated by their schools, and then must submit an application with a short essay to a selection committee. The committee selected 20 students for each of two residential sessions at Ole Miss.

The camp enables future scientists to gain experience in conducting experiments and research, recording their findings and drawing conclusions. The field work is conducted at the University's Biological Field Station, with inside laboratory work performed in Shoemaker Hall, home of the Ole Miss biology department. Camp participants also use a student computer laboratory to record their research.

"We're learning about the habitat of freshwater organisms," said DeAnn Verbeck of Ocean Springs.

"We're looking at how oil spills might effect the organisms and their tolerance to the changes in habitat."

Students work as teams and one-on-one with instructors during the three weeks. Lucile McCook, adjunct assistant professor of biology, heads the Ole Miss program that is funded by the National Science Foundation. The program is sponsored by the Department of Biology and coordinated by the Center for Public Service and Continuing Studies.

Along with McCook, other members of the University's biology faculty and its graduate students assist campers.

"We went to Hernando one day to look at a constructed wetlands," said Greg Loose of Wiggins. "The site there examined the effects of chemical run-off from a dairy farm to the adjoining wetlands."

Experiments conducted during the camp are varied, to offer students a quick look at the diversity of issues broached by biology researchers. Erica Marsh of Humboldt, Tenn., said she was interested in becoming a marine biologist and the camp would offer her an opportunity to explore that option. She will use the information gained to make career decisions.

But it's not all microscopes and testing, said Kenny Spansel of Bay St. Louis. "I've made numerous friends among the college students by just walking up to them and striking up a conversation."

For information about attending the 1995 camp, call the Ole Miss biology department at 232-7203 or the Center for Public Service and Continuing Studies at 232-7282.

Guenard appointed coordinator

Hayward Guenard, coordinator of student activities at the University of Tampa, has been appointed membership coordinator for the Southeast region of the National Association for Campus Activities (NACA). He began his term May 1.

In this position, Guenard is responsible for developing and maintaining ongoing membership recruitment and retention campaigns of school and associate members in the South Central region. As membership coordinator, he serves as liaison with the national office regarding membership inquiries, publications and policies.

The Southeast region consists of schools from Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, Kentucky and Puerto Rico.

NACA is a national organization of nearly 1,200 colleges and universities and 575 talent firms representing all 50 states and the Canadian provinces. Headquartered in Columbia, S.C., NACA is the largest and most influential campus activities non-profit association that provides education, information, and resources for students and administrators to establish quality campus activities.

Guenard is the son of Marie and Milton Bernard, and of Hamilton and Terry Guenard of Waveland. He is a 1982 Bay High graduate, USM graduate, and received a master's degree from the University of Georgia at Athens.

RESOLUTION

There came on for consideration by the Board of Education of the Hancock County School District, Hancock County, Mississippi, the matter of the borrowing of money and the issuance of notes therefor in the maximum principal amount of One Million Two Hundred Twenty-Five Thousand and No/100 Dollars ($1,225,000.00). After a discussion of the subject, Board Member Carol Bustetter offered and moved the adoption of the following Resolution:

RESOLUTION OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE HANCOCK COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICT DECLARING THE NECESSITY FOR AND INTENTION OF BORROWING MONEY FOR THE PURPOSE OF PAYING THE COSTS OF ACQUIRING, IMPROVING, CONSTRUCTING, RENOVATING, REPAIRING, HEATING, COOLING AND EQUIPPING SCHOOL BUILDINGS AND RELATED FACILITIES, PURCHASING SCHOOL BUSES AND TRANSPORTATION EQUIPMENT, AND TO PAY THE COSTS OF SUCH BORROWING, ALL AT AN APPROXIMATE COST OF $1,225,000.00, ORDERING SAID RESOLUTION TO BE PUBLISHED, AND SETTING THE DATE UPON WHICH THE BOARD OF EDUCATION IS TO TAKE FINAL ACTION UPON THE QUESTION OF AUTHORIZING THE BORROWING OF SAID MONEY.

WHEREAS, the Board of Education of the Hancock County School District, Hancock County, Mississippi (the "Board"), acting for and on behalf of the Hancock County School District (the "District"), does hereby find, determine, adjudicate and declare:

1. That it is necessary for the District that a maximum of One Million Two Hundred Twenty-Five Thousand and No/100 Dollars ($1,225,000.00) be borrowed for the purpose of acquiring, improving, constructing, renovating, repairing, heating, cooling and equipping school buildings and related facilities, purchasing school buses and transportation equipment and equipment and paying the costs of such borrowing.

2. That no funds are available in the school funds of the District or from any other source with which to pay the costs of such borrowing.

3. That it would be in the best interests and to the advantage of the District that the funds needed for the project be obtained by the issuance of negotiable notes of the District in the principal amount of One Million Two Hundred Twenty-Five Thousand and No/100 Dollars ($1,225,000.00) in the manner and form provided by Section 37-59-101, et. seq., of the Mississippi Code of 1972, as amended (the "Act").

4. That the District currently has outstanding notes with an aggregate outstanding principal balance of approximately $225,000.00, previously issued under the authority of the Act.

5. That an annual levy of a special tax which shall not exceed three (3) mills on assessed value of the taxable property within the District shall be sufficient to pay the principal and interest on the negotiable notes to be issued hereunder, as well as all other outstanding notes previously issued under the Act as the same may respectively mature and accrue.

6. That under the provisions of Section 37-59-115 of the Mississippi Code of 1972, as amended, the resolution of Section 37-59-6 of the Mississippi Code of 1972, as amended, on the indebtedness which may be incurred by school districts is not applicable to the proposed issuance of negotiable notes.

7. That the purpose for which the proposed notes are to be issued as herein set forth in this resolution are purposes authorized by the laws of the State of Mississippi and particularly in Section 37-59-101, et. seq., of the Mississippi Code of 1972, as amended, and that said Board is authorized and required to declare the necessity and its intention of borrowing money and issuing the negotiable notes of the District as evidence of the same.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the Board of Education of the Hancock County School District, Hancock County, Mississippi, as follows:

Section 1. The Board does hereby find, determine and adjudicate that the foregoing premises are true and correct.

Section 2. The Board does hereby declare that it is necessary to borrow an amount not exceeding One Million Two Hundred Twenty-Five Thousand and No/100 Dollars ($1,225,000.00) for the purpose of acquiring, improving, constructing, renovating, repairing, heating, cooling and equipping school buildings and related facilities, purchasing school buses and transportation equipment and equipment and paying the costs of such borrowing.

Section 3. The Board does hereby further declare that no funds are available in the school funds of the District or from any other source with which to pay the costs of the Project, and that it is necessary that the costs thereof be borrowed in the manner and form provided by Section 37-59-101, et. seq., of the Mississippi Code of 1972, as amended.

Section 4. The Board hereby declares its intention to borrow money and to issue negotiable notes of the District as evidence of the same, and that the costs of the Project, previously described herein, all at a total approximate cost of One Million Two Hundred Twenty-Five Thousand and No/100 Dollars ($1,225,000.00).

Section 5. That unless a petition signed by 20% of the qualified electors of said District, requesting that an election be called on the question of incurring said indebtedness, is filed prior to 4:30 p.m. on Monday, July 25, 1994, at the Central Office of the District, located at 451-A Highway 90, Waveland, Mississippi, approval of the borrowing of said money and authority for the issuance of said notes or certificates of indebtedness shall be given by the Board at a meeting held on such date and hour as the Board's regular meeting place (located at 451-A Highway 90, Waveland, Mississippi).

Section 6. That the Secretary of the Board be and is hereby authorized and directed to cause this Resolution, as adopted, to be published in "The Sea Coast Echo", a newspaper published in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, and of general circulation in the District and qualified under the provisions of Section 19-9-1 of the Mississippi Code of 1972, as amended, said Resolution shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks, with the first publication thereof to be made not less than 15 days prior to July 25, 1994, on which date the Board will take final action on the question of authorizing the borrowing of said money.

Section 7. That all orders, resolutions or proceedings of the Board in conflict with the provisions of this Resolution shall be and the same are hereby repealed.

The motion to adopt the foregoing Resolution was duly seconded by Board Member Kay Sonnet. The motion then being put to a vote, the results were as follows:

BOARD MEMBER	VOTED
Carol Bustetter	Aye
Cheryl Bennett	Aye
Lennette Necaise	Absent
Kay Sonnet	Aye
Larry Peterson	Aye

Having received a majority of the affirmative votes of the Board, the Resolution passed on this the 29th day of June, 1994.

Stethem:

DDG 63, the sixth Arleigh Burke (DDG 51) Class Aegis guided missile destroyer to be built by Ingalls' Shipbuilding division of Litton Industries in Pascagoula, was launched Friday, June 17. The new ship will be christened "Stethem" in ceremonies at Ingalls July 16, by Mrs. Patricia L. Stethem, mother of the ship's namesake, Petty Officer Robert Dean Stethem, USN (1961-1985). Steelworker Second Class Stethem, a Seabee and Navy diver, was posthumously awarded a Bronze Star for bravery and heroism as he faced death while being held hostage by terrorists on TWA Flight 847 in Athens, Greece June 14, 1985. The public is invited to attend DDG 63's christening, which begins at 10 a.m., one hour earlier than the customary starting time for ship ceremonies at Ingalls. The ceremony will be held at Ingalls' facilities on the west bank of the Pascagoula River. (Ingalls Shipbuilding photo)

Plan ahead for tornado safety

By Bethany L. Waldrop
MSU Ag Communications

Although new technologies abound, man has found no way to prevent or alter the path of a tornado. But knowing the signs of a tornado can help families protect themselves from this frightening natural phenomenon.

"From 1916 to the present, Mississippi ranks No. 1 in the nation in tornado-related fatalities," said Jim Butch, warnings and coordination meteorologist at the weather service office in Jackson.

"Most tornadoes move from the southwest to the northeast with ground speeds from 25 to 30 miles per hour, with internal air speeds from 70 to 300 miles per hour."

A tornado funnel looks like a spinning, twisting rope at its bottom and fans out into a funnel-shaped cloud. The funnel usually is gray or black. A nearby tornado sounds like the roar of a jet plane or a diesel freight train.

Herb Willcutt, extension agricultural engineer at Mississippi State University, said it is both the force and the unpredictability of tornadoes that makes them so frightening.

"Tornadoes cause unbelievable destruction, taking many lives," Willcutt said. "Property loss usually is extensive, and farming often loses more property to tornadoes than any other business."

State weather offices issue two kinds of warnings of dangerous weather — the tornado watch and tornado warning.

"A tornado watch means just that — start watching the weather and tune in to television and radio weather reports," Butch said.

"A tornado warning means a tornado has been detected by radar, so take immediate action to protect your life."

Public outlets for tornado watch and warning information include radio and television stations, the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol, other law enforcement agencies and Civil Defense.

Willcutt suggested keeping tuned to a radio or television station on hot, muggy days for possible tornado information. If a tornado warning is given or if you see or hear a tornado approaching, take shelter immediately. Talk with your family about what to do and make sure to have a designated area for a shelter.

"Decide on a designated shelter area and have a tornado drill at home," Butch said. "Try to put as many walls between yourself and the tornado as you can — go to a small room in the interior of the house on the lowest floor."

"Homeowners should leave windows alone when a tornado is spotted — don't try to open a few before going to a sheltered area," Butch said. "You're putting yourself at risk of injury or death from shattering glass if you do."

During a tornado, the appropriate shelter can make the difference between life and death. "Our No. 1 emphasis is for people in mobile homes to take extra precautions, since about 69 percent of tornado-related death in the last 10 years have been in mobile homes," Butch said.

"When a tornado watch is issued, move to a more sturdy building — don't wait until a warning is issued, because it may be too late."

Homeowners should go to a tornado cellar or basement. Make sure the shelter has an air opening and includes a pick, shovel, crowbar, lantern and first aid kit.

"In homes without a tornado shelter, the southwest corner of a basement usually offers the most safety," Willcutt said.

"If the house has no basement, take cover in a closet or hallway, or under heavy furniture in the central part of the house."

If you are in a mobile home, go to the nearest community shelter. Mobile homes are very dangerous during high winds and may be overturned even when securely tied down.

In schools, avoid auditoriums and gymnasiums. If possible, go to an interior hallway on the west floor, avoiding windows.

"If you are in open country and see a tornado approaching, move away from the tornado's path at a right angle," Willcutt said.

"If you are in a car, get out and lie flat in the nearest non-flooded ditch, ravine, culvert or under a bridge."

The danger of being in a car during a tornado is the possibility that the tornado could hit the car.

"If you are in the path of a tornado while you're in a car, you have a total lack of control, and you are surrounded by glass, which can easily be shattered by strong winds and debris," Willcutt said.

"Tornadoes can move very quickly, so trying to outrun one may not be the best idea."

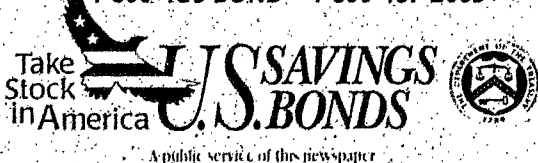

In a city or town, seek shelter inside, preferably in a strong, steel-framed or reinforced concrete building, keeping away from windows.

"Remember that a severe thunderstorm can cause as much damage as a tornado in some cases, so take the same protective actions as you would for a tornado," Burch said. "Taking precautions can help save your life."

MDOT uses dollars effectively

The Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT) recently ranked third in the nation for the most cost-effective use of highway dollars, according to a study released by the University of North Carolina at Charlotte.

According to MDOT executive director Robert L. Robinson, Mississippi came in third behind North Dakota and Wyoming, with Arkansas and Nebraska rounding out the top five.

Robinson said MDOT was able to move from sixth to third by reducing costs and improving accident rates and bridge conditions.

Data for the third annual study was collected over an eight-year period from 1984 to 1992 and concerned U.S. highway costs and system performance. Each state's data was compared with similar states and national trends.

Mississippi also had a low percentage rating for administrative costs compared to the total disbursements in state highway programs. State administrative costs rose 14 percent between 1991 and 1992 and ranged from 2.5 percent in Colorado to 18.3 percent in New Hampshire. Mississippi's cost was 6.1 percent.

The study also found that, contrary to popular opinion, the U.S. highway system is improving in condition.

My Garden Is Me

Step into a delightful retreat

"My love for flowers and gardening came from my mother."

Nina's Friendship Garden
To know someone with whom you feel friendship and understanding that makes this life
a garden.

Pink Beauty Caladiums

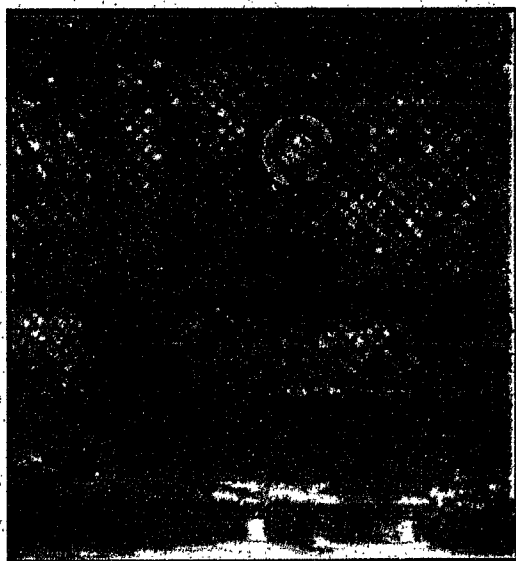

Stepping stones display names and flowers

Nina Cotton's bench is a remembrance of her mother

A riot of colorful blooms
brighten the garden

Gazebo is a quiet haven for sitting

Nina Cotton's garden flourishes with love - her love for plants and flowers and her love for her family and good friends.

The Cotton's home, on a corner lot in Diamondhead, is a showplace of blooms, borders, hanging baskets and climbing vines, but Nina's personal touches make the yard extra special.

When Nina and husband Lou retired to their new home from Baton Rouge, she knew she had her work cut out for her when she saw how "ugly" the lot was. Some grading made it better, but the overall landscaping scheme took some time to develop.

The gazebo takes a place of prominence on one side of the back yard. A brick walk leads to the quiet sitting place decorated with gingerbread trim that Nina's sister, Margaret McLeMore, salvaged from an old house in Crystal Springs. The fancy wood cutwork is also used at intervals in the fence, gates and trellises.

The gazebo was constructed by Rusty Chain of Gulfport from a small picture that Nina had clipped from a Southern Living magazine. Before the builder arrived at a specific size for the gazebo, he made sure the Cotton's wrought iron furniture would fit comfortably in the space, then he planned accordingly.

Nina designed the stained glass window in the gazebo using colors to imitate those found in her flower beds. She was pleased to have found a craftsman in Bay St. Louis, Peter Ewart, to fabricate the window for her.

She added her Friendship Garden in 1992. "This section was added as it was difficult to keep weeds from growing into existing beds," Nina explained.

The azalea bushes and pine needle bedding around them formed a natural circle that she outlined with boxwoods. Nina enjoyed standing there to drink coffee and to think about old friendships. She decided to start a garden of memories by painting the names of her friends on stepping stones.

"The perfect stepping stone which resembled sawed-off logs, were found at Bill Chapman's shop "Outside-In" in Bay St. Louis," Nina said.

Most of the names are of treasured old friends she made while working as a research librarian for Exxon. The last stone she added was one for her best friend, it reads, Mama - friends since 10/29/20 (the day she was born).

Mary Louise Goodman, an artist in Pass Christian, painted the stones with "their favorite flower, or ones that remind me of them," Nina said.

An appropriate verse from a greeting card, applied to a plaque, coated with sealant and displayed on an iron stand, was just the right touch for the spot. Sitting beside the marker is a custom designed iron bench that has a portion of its seat made from a square of marble out of her mother's dresser.

A bird house village stands safely on poles and is a novel way to represent Nina's family members.

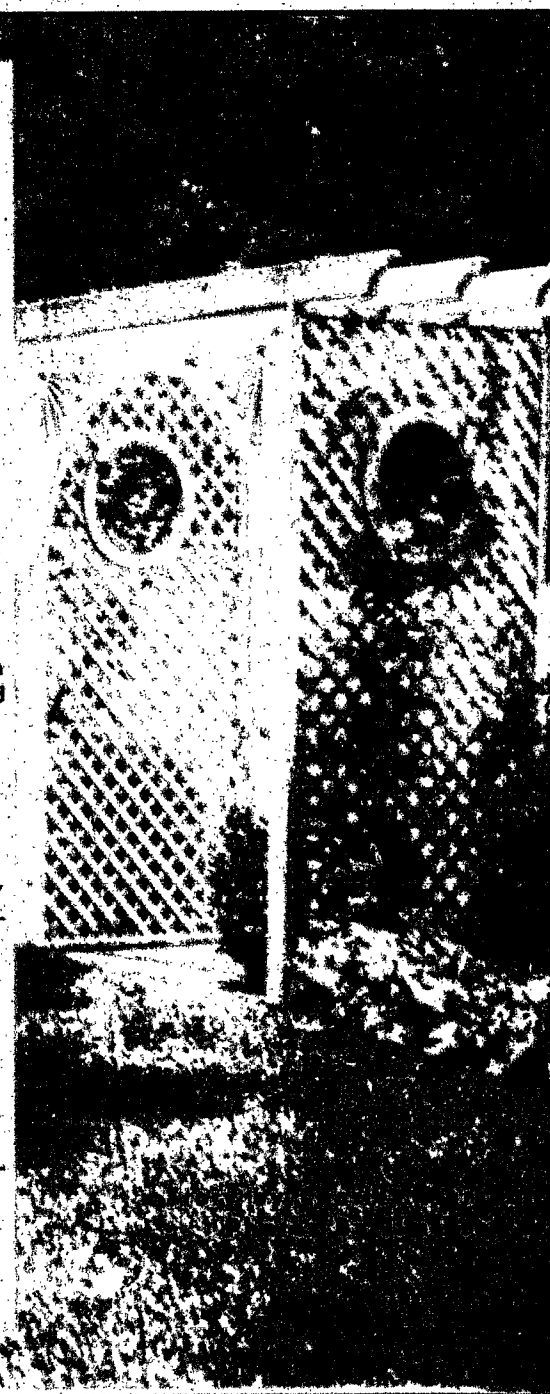

One of the bird houses was copied after the antebellum home "Marmac" in Hazelhurst, which belongs to Nina's brother-in-law and sister, the D.S. McLeMores.

Friends from Louisiana State University and the University of Southern Mississippi, Nina's alma mater, are also represented in the bird village. Nina said her father and mother played a part in the choice of U.S.M.'s school colors of black and gold when they attended the university back in 1912. Her mother chose the colors of a favorite flower, the Black-eyed Susan.

The Cotton's garden is a lot of work for Nina, but she doesn't mind a bit. Lou keeps the grass cut, and she does the rest. She varies the assortment of flowers in the beds, according to season and keeps others in pots. She admires English gardens, a profusion of flowers in no particular order, but prefers borders and symmetry in hers.

She plants 600 bulbs every year and her garden, at any time, may have 20 different blooms in its colorful array. Right now she has in her garden, impatiens, begonias, petunias, sunflowers, periwinkle, geraniums, sultana, roses and Sweet William, among others. Springtime jonquils and tulips give way to azaleas, cannas, day lilies, salvia and caladiums. Then, yellow pansies take over for the colder months.

There's always something blooming in Nina's Friendship Garden.

potential and scholastic merit. Delgado, a junior at Our Lady Academy, will be among 350 outstanding delegates attending the conference from across America.

Theme of the conference is "The Leader of Tomorrow Meeting the Leaders of Today." Throughout the 11-day conference, Delgado will interact with key leaders and newsmakers from the three branches of government, the media and the diplomatic corps.

The conference provides the opportunity for students to distinguish themselves as tomorrow's leaders," said John Hines, Council executive director. "Delegates not only gain knowledge and experience in the nation's capital, they leave with a sense of accomplishment and an increased ability to face the challenges of the future."

Children's books sought for service

The Children's Book Bank, sponsored by the New Orleans-Gulf Coast (NOGSBA) and Bookends Bookstore, in cooperation with the Hancock County Library System, has begun a book drive for "fairly new" and used children's books to benefit the Save Our Children Youth Center.

Bookdrops for the books are at Hancock Bank, Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis and Waveland; Hancock Bank, Diamondhead; Merchants Bank, Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis; The Peoples Bank, Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis; Sunburst Bank, Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis; the City-County Library, Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis; and Bookends Bookstore, Hwy. 90, Bay St. Louis.

The drive will last through Aug. 31, and the public is urged to donate any children's books that can be used in the library at the Save Our Children Youth Center. The library will be used for tutoring and reading, and other donations, such as furniture, equipment, games, etc. are also welcome.

For information on the project, please contact Susan Daigre, Bookends, Bookstore, 467-9623, or Mary Perkins, Hancock County Library System, 467-5282.

She has danced with Nashville Ballet for the past five seasons and has appeared in lead roles in "Cinderella," "The Nutcracker," "The Moor's Pavane" and most recently, "Valse Fantasie." McCoy also danced professionally with Atlanta Ballet, Ballet South and Wilkes-Barre Ballet Theatre in Pennsylvania.

Register for ballet workshop

The Ballet Place and Coast Youth Ballet Ensemble are now registering for the fourth annual Summer Ballet Workshop at the Ballet Place studio at 356 Main Street in Bay St. Louis.

The two-week workshop will run July 25 through August 5, and classes will be taught by guest professional dancers Elizabeth McCoy of Nashville Ballet and Kenny Carter of North Carolina Dance Theatre.

The workshop is open to serious dance students age 9 and older with at least one year of classical ballet training.

Classes will be offered in four levels: beginner (Mon., Wed. and Fri.); intermediate (daily technique); advanced intermediate (daily technique and pointe); and advanced (daily technique, pointe and variations in the evening).

Fees for the two weeks range from $40 to $125, depending on the level, and students may also register for one week only.

Dancers should pre-register by calling director Sharon Loicano at 467-4601 or 466-2625 before July 20.

Kenny Carter

He studied dance at North Carolina School of the Arts for three years before moving on to Pittsburgh Ballet Theatre School and then to Giacobbe Academy of Dance in New Orleans. He performed with Delta Festival Ballet and New Orleans Youth Ballet before moving to Nashville, Tenn., to perform professionally with Nashville Ballet for two seasons. Carter is presently a member of North Carolina Dance Theatre.

College scholarships available

Each year individuals preparing to go to college or graduate school face the dilemma of how to pay for tuition, room & board, text books, lab fees, and other expenses. That's because college costs have skyrocketed and continue to increase yearly, putting extra strain on family budgets and assets.

Yet there are over 375,000 funding sources available to assist these students. Contrary to popular belief over 80% of the funds available to students do not depend on family need or high grades. Many are based on factors such as the student's interests, hobbies, academic focus, age, ethnic background or parent's work or military service.

Remarkably over $6.6 billion of this funding goes uncollected each year simply because people do not ask for it according to a report by the National Commission on Student Financial Aid. Now a new academic funding publication, updated for 1994 is available to help step students through the process and to outline their options and identify sources for assistance.

For information on how to receive academic funding and scholarships send a No. 10 self addressed, double stamped envelope plus $1.00 to cover handling to the National Academic Funding Administration, 26 Coe Drive, Suite 1300, Durham, NH 03824.

State announces campus dates

Beginning freshmen and transfer students who haven't already done so should apply no later than July 25 for 1994 fall semester admission to Mississippi State University.

Registration information for new students can be obtained in 112 Allen Hall or by telephoning (601) 325-2662.

Campus housing opens for residency at 8 a.m. Aug. 14 and fall semester classes begin at the same hour Aug. 22.

Other major student- and alumni-related dates for the first part of the 1994-95 school year include:

- * Sept. 5, Labor Day holiday (university closed).
- * Oct. 22, Homecoming.
- * Nov. 24-27, Thanksgiving holidays (university closed).
- * Dec. 9, last day for beginning freshmen and transfer students to apply for spring semester admission.
- * Dec. 10-16, final examinations.
- * Dec. 19, fall semester ends.

Spring semester classes begin Jan. 9, with commencement scheduled for May 13.

Mississippi law protects young passengers

Since July 1, motorists are required by law to secure all children age four or younger in a child safety seat when they are riding in a motor vehicle.

Prior to the new amendments to the Child Passenger Protection Law, only children up to age two were protected by child safety seats.

"We are pleased that more Mississippi children will now be protected," states Christy Gilliland, director of the Division of Disabilities Prevention of the Mississippi Department of Rehabilitation Services.

"Hopefully, enforcement of this law will make Mississippians more safety-conscious."

Although child safety seats have been proven to reduce injuries and death by 71 percent when used correctly, too many Mississippians are not protecting their children.

The latest child seat usage survey revealed that less than two of every 10 children in Mississippi were correctly restrained in a child safety seat.

"If parents were aware of the risks, they would never fail to buckle up their children every time they ride," remarks Laurie Little of Collins.

Little gives a child safety seat credit for saving the life of her 15-month-old son. Little and her son were involved in a severe automobile crash which totaled their vehicle and put Little in the hospital.

"Thank goodness, Christopher was buckled into his car seat," states Little. "If you could see the damage done to the car, you would wonder how a small child could have survived the crash."

Although the impact crushed the automobile's right side, Christopher was found sitting uninjured in his car seat. "I now realize how valuable child seats can be," explains Little.

According to Gretchen Mahan, Child Occupant Protection coordinator for the Mississippi Department of Rehabilitation Services, parents are often too eager to take their children out of child safety seats.

"Child seats have been developed to secure children up to about 70 pounds," explains Mahan.

"In many cases, children are within this weight range until they reach approximately six years of age. Unfortunately, parents frequently fail to take full advantage of the child safety seats available."

Until a child is approximately 20 pounds or about 9 months of age, children should ride facing backwards in an infant seat designed to be used in the rear facing position. A child weighing from 20 to 40 pounds should be restrained in a convertible seat facing forward.

Booster seats are designed to protect children weighing from about 40 to 70 pounds.

"Of course, the manufacturer's instructions should be consulted for eight and height limits for each particular seat," cautions Mahan.

In addition to insuring that the appropriate seat is used for each child, parents must also make sure that the seat is used correctly.

Car seats are only effective when used properly. According to the Mississippi SAFE KIDS Coalition, several common child safety seat misuses have been

Dean finds first year fulfilling

USM-Gulf Coast faces many challenges in its first year, but Dean James O. Williams says the challenges are also opportunities.

Docks, gambling on the Gulf Coast has forced the area to deal with population changes, expanding infrastructure needs and an ongoing transition from relaxed coastal environment to a faster metropolitan pace, said Dr. Williams.

USM-Gulf Coast — with centers at Gulf Park in Long Beach, Keesler Air Force Base in Biloxi, on the Mississippi Gulf Coast Community College campus in Gautier — has similar challenges to face if it hopes to continue growing in the future, Williams said.

"It's a challenge and also a frustration trying to decide, with limited resources, how best to serve a growing metropolitan area stretching between the Alabama and Louisiana state lines," said Williams, who completes his first year as dean of USM-Gulf Coast.

Williams came to USM-Gulf Coast July 1, 1993, after serving as chancellor of Auburn University at Montgomery, Ala., for more than 12 years. Williams termed his first year on the job as "exciting," adding that since taking the job, he has become even more aware of USM-Gulf Coast's "tremendous potential."

U.S. Census figures in 1990 indicated more than 60,000 in the state's six southern-most counties either hold an associate's degree from a community college or have some college classes under their belt, Williams said.

"What that means to me is that there are more than 60,000 people in the area who had an initial inclination to seek a college degree," said Williams.

"Because of the population growth since that information was gathered, it's probably much higher now — and that segment of the population represents tremendous potential for the growth of USM-Gulf Coast if we can find appropriate ways to serve them."

Planning, attention to educational needs and increased funding should help that effort along, Williams said. USM also offers some classes at the Stennis Space Center in Hancock County.

Off-site centers like USM-Gulf Coast are funded based on credit-hour production that does not take into account physical plant, libraries and other support facilities and staff needed, the dean said, and operating on 85 percent funding squeezes every penny USM-Gulf Coast gets from the state.

Williams said his wish list also includes funding to build a modern, multi-purpose classroom building and a new library on the Gulf park campus.

Increased activities for USM-Gulf Coast students also make the list — and can help the centers improve visibility and create a more solid identity locally and statewide, he added.

But USM-Gulf Coast is not sitting still, waiting for something to happen, Williams emphasized. A curriculum in hotel, restaurant and tourism management is now available to meet demand for that kind of training on the Coast, he said.

The American studies program, added to the USM-Gulf Coast curriculum in the fall 1993, has proven successful because "students can almost tailor their program to meet their educational needs," Williams said.

If all goes according to plan, Williams said USM-Gulf Coast will add a master's program in school counseling beginning in the fall. Williams expects that program to "be a viable program from day one" because of strong resident interest.

Three new faculty members will join USM-Gulf Coast this fall, Williams said. A planned classroom building on the Gulf Park campus to house business classes and include 10 offices should be out for bid later this summer and could be complete by spring 1995. And the school is improving its recruiting and visibility as a higher education institution, he said.

"There is so much potential here," Williams stated. "The growth of USM-Gulf Coast is limited only by resources."

Home health perinatal services offer benefits

Perinatal Services or Mother/Child programs produce many benefits when brought into the home environment. New and challenged families are offered the comfort and security of receiving one-on-one care from perinatal nurses, while in familiar surroundings.

Not only do families enjoy personal treatment, but they are taught to independently care for their newborn through stages of growth and development.

In addition, home services provides a means for 24-hour nursing availability.

Several home health care agencies along the Mississippi Gulf Coast provide specialized perinatal nursing services, which focuses on helping new or expectant mothers reap these and many more benefits from prenatal care usually through the infant's first immunizations.

The services offer antepartal and postpartal care, with focus on high risk pregnancies, IV therapy, and diagnostic lab work. Also addressed throughout the expecting mother's care is activity modification, administering of medication, recognition of signs and symptoms of complications, and childbirth preparation.

Once the newborn leaves the hospital, the Mother/Child staff assists the new mother with successful transition into the home environment, including breast and bottle feeding, infant CPR and growth and development.

Recently these perinatal home health care programs service not only mothers and their newborn child but now encompasses the pediatric population, which includes children up to 18 with acute and long-term healthcare needs.

Services such as skilled nursing assessment, nutritional assessment, wound care, respiratory therapy, activity modification and medication administration are addressed throughout their care.

In order to be admitted to perinatal home health programs, patients must receive a referral from either a physician or social worker.

Upon admission, a nurse is placed on call 24 hours a day to answer questions or for emergency assistance.

For more information about home health perinatal services contact Anne Cho, RN, director of the Maternal/Child Program at Professional Home Health, 388-4144.
